Why We

Build

Imagine a world where everyone has a decent place to live. That is the goal Habitat for Humanity works towards everyday - starting in our own back yard.

Habitat demonstrates the principles on which we were founded to be the hands and feet of Jesus Christ by providing the opportunity of affordable homeownership to hardworking families in our community.

We make every effort to promote dignity and hope to families we serve and ensure their needs are met in a sustainable and transformational way. That is why every Habitat partner must first successfully complete over 100 sweat equity hours working on our construction sites and fundraising for the Habitat cause. They must also pass homebuyer education and financial literacy classes.

But our families' hard work does not stop there. Once the keys are passed, homeowners pay an interest-free mortgage back to habitat.

It is a sustainable program for families seeking to achieve the dream of homeownership. And it's sustainable for Habitat for Humanity because the mortgage payment we receive can be invested right back into the community.
